1. Monday

Monday was our first full day in Barcelona and the first day we meet the students from the school we were working with. After waking up and getting ready we went to the canteen for breakfast. Then we went to a bus stop to start our adventure.

After getting off at the stop we didn't quite know how to get to the school but once we figured out we got to the school and we were amazed by the size of it. We were taken by one of the teachers to a classroom (with a stage and rows of seats kinda like in a theater) where the Spanish students were waiting.

They showed us a presentation about their school and we found out that in their school there is about 1500 students and that there are: a kindergarten, a primary school, a high school and something like studies.

Then the Spanish students took us for a walk around the school, and they showed us all 6 floors of the school! In their school they had lots of classrooms and 4 or 5 pitches. A few of the most interesting classrooms to me were: the chemistry lab, the room for technical classes with various saws and laser cutters, the gym in which they have a climbing wall.

I was also surprised to hear that there are 40 students in one class! After the "tour" around we had some ice breakers and later, divided into two groups, we went with our Spanish friends for a walk around the neighborhood. After that we had lunch together.

In the afternoon we didn't do any more activities at school. We went by underground to Placa de Catalunya and we went to Eixample where we saw Casa Batllo which was designed by architect Antoni Gaudi and built in 1877 .

After having free time, we came back to our hotel and had supper. Later everyone took showers and we went to sleep. It was an exciting day.

2. Tuesday

Our second day in Barcelona, Tuesday, we went from our hotel to the school that we were going to in Barcelona at that time. We watched a presentation made by a spanish teacher and her students about Gothic Quarter that we were going to visit later. We got presented information about the place so we knew the backstory of it. After that we went to the metro station and started the trip to our destination (Gothic Quarter). When we arrived we were divided into groups and were given tasks to do. We had to take photos of places that were on our lists. We started walking and not only took the photos but also went to shops, markets and we bought some magnets and food! After we took all of the photos we returned to the main place where everyone was waiting. we exchanged information and summarized the task. Then we went to the metro to come back to school for lunch.

3. Wednesday

After having breakfast, we set off on our way to school. When we arrived, our friends greeted us. We got on the metro and started our journey.

When we got off the metro, a hike uphill to Park Güell awaited us. Upon reaching the top, we saw a few parrots sitting on the wall.

We had a short break to rest. Once we had rested, we went to get our tickets. We entered the park and received task cards.

We had to take pictures of various things in Park Güell. We split into two groups and got started. The park was very beautiful, and we saw many lovely buildings.

After completing all the tasks, we returned to school for lunch. It was a very successful day.

Our (Erasmus) second day, we spent in the Park Guel in Barcelona. This day we started with breakfast. After breakfast, spanish friends in their school they took us to the metro and we went to Guel Park. We found that, this park was created by Antonio Gaudi, the same man who designed Sagrada Familia. Spanish guys and girls tour us to see all the most famous places in this park, like this:

The weather in this day was pretty good, it was sunny and hot, only at the end of day it was colder. In that day, we weren't only in Park Guel, but also on the "thousands" stairs of Museum National de Catalunya.

The panorama on the top of this stairs was amazing. Our last attraction likely for teenagers was a huge mall in the old bull arena.

4. Thursday

On Thursday in Barcelona, we had a fantastic day at the beach. We played dodgeball, enjoying the fun and competition. Then, we got creative and dug the "Pit of Abundance," which curious pigeons eagerly jumped into, making us laugh and marvel at the sight.

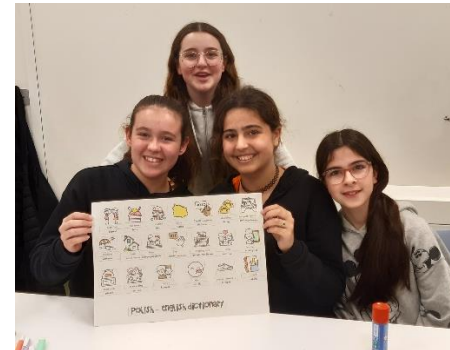

After our beach adventures, we explored the surrounding area, admiring the charming streets and the lively atmosphere of the city. To end the day, we visited one of Barcelona's greatest landmarks – the majestic Sagrada Familia. Its stunning architecture and intricate details left us in awe, making the day even more unforgettable.

5. Friday

On Friday had a very hard task to do. We had lessons about Poland and Lodz. We had prepared presentations about Łódź and Poland, and taught our peers from Spain some basic polish vocabulary. It was a great experience.

Then we tasted a delicious cheesecake from the 99cheesecake™ bakery, where you could choose your own toppings, such as sprinkles and frostings.

Later we went to the Las Arenas™ shopping mall, where we could walk around various shops, restaurants, or go to the viewing terrace.

6. Saturday

That day we went to the Old town of Barcelona again. We had some free time to visit places we liked. Then we all gathered on the meeting spot and went to restaurant called "Made in Sycily". Here we ate a delicious pizza. Then we again went to mall Las Arenas where we also got some time left. At the end we walked to metro that took us to our motel. We packed ourselves and went to sleep.

7. Sunday

Sunday was our last day in Barcelona. We started the day with a relaxing breakfast. Later, we left our luggage at the hostel. We made our way to the aircraft museum, where we looked at various planes.

After the museum, we took some time to rest before heading back to the hostel to get our bags. From there, we took the metro to the airport where we spent about an hour waiting for our flight back to Poland.

After about 3 hours, we landed in Warsaw and took a bus back to Łódź, we arrived around midnight. It was the perfect end to an amazing trip to Barcelona.

Places to visit:

We came back from Barcelona and here are the places we would like to recommend:

Sagrada Família

Why you should visit it?

Sagrada Família is a must-see on a trip in Barcelona. Whenever you go here, you will never get bored of its breath-taking look. Designed by the legendary architect Antoni Gaudí, the Sagrada Família is an iconic representation of modernist architecture and one of the most unique religious structures in the world. It's announced that the structure will finally be finished in no time.

The Gothic Quarter

Why you should visit the gothic quarter ?

The gothic quarter is one of the most iconic places in Barcelona. Nestled in the middle of the city, this mesmerizing place has a lot hidden gems to be found, by us- the visitors. You can go on

Why do you need to visit 99chessecake? 99chessecake is a place where you can eat very delicious chess cake for only 99 cents.

Park Güle

Why do you need to visit Park Güell

Park Güell it is a beautiful place where you can see a lot of animals, and green areas. It shows a part of Barcelona history.

Original, it was built for living, but people don't want to live there because it's far from the center of Barcelona. And now there're only two buildings that are not for living.
